

In 1980 Sande Shurin changed the direction of acting by creating her 'self' and 'character based' technique called Transformational Acting. It focused on developing the actor's ability to be prescensed, to use their current emotions, and to transform who they are into the written character. She coaches and encourages the actors to take bold actions, take risks and to continually move past their limitations.

Her work has appeared on OPRAH, America's Next Top Model, and many realty shows. She has directed on and off Broadway, for TV, and directed two films by Bruce Levy; Museum Scandals and True Love.

Ms. Shurin teaches and coaches at her Manhattan and Woodstock, NY studios.

That missing element, that key elusive ingredient, that special guidance is Transformational Acting.

You’ve always wondered what the secret magic potion was. How one particular performer, singer, actor, politician, anyone who is in the limelight and stands out in the public eye, achieved that elusive breakthrough to success or stardom.

"I met Sande when I was a precocious 18 Year old who had just moved to New York from Los Angeles and had sworn off of charlatan teachers. Within seconds of sharing her wisdom, insight and enormous generous creativity I was hooked. The next day I had an audition for Six Degrees of Separation for Broadway. As prepared, her words resonated in me, and I got the role. The next few years laid the groundwork for "Rent" and all my film work."-Anthony Rapp – Film: "A Beautiful Mind", "School Ties" Broadway: "Rent", "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown"

"With Sande I 'stopped acting' and was able to have real emotions and experiences on stage. Acting returned to the incredible rush it had been earlier...that sense of flying."- Annie Edgerton Broadway: "Mamma Mia"

“I’ve studied with some of the best coaches in NYC, including The Actor’s Studio and nowhere did I get the mantra to “use myself” as clearly as I did from Sande Shurin. Her class was a revelation after all the “Stanislavsky, Strasberg and Meisner” which I found both helpful and confusing. The clarity of Sande’s vision has honed my own personal technique into an understandable, repeatable and reliable way of approaching character and script, that takes out the guesswork and leaves me feeling confident in my approach to my work at the end of the day. Thank you Sande!” Pam Tate, Actress, Playwright

Sande has helped me immensely as a actor, and now in casting at All My Children. I constantly see her technique shining through her students at auditions. Bob Lambert Casting, All My Children.

“Sande is an incredible teacher. She can help any actor break-thru what is blocking them to help them become a more truthful, more interesting actor. Her Techniques are so good I use them in my life as well as work” Casey Nicholaw Tony nominated Director Choreographer: The Drowsy Chaperone,, and Tony winner for The Book Of Mormon.

“After years of studying with some of the other ‘Greats’ I met Sande Shurin and experienced her Transformational Acting Technique. Sande taught me to be present and act truthfully...moment to moment...coming from my unique self. Acting has become fun again. Thank you Sande” Robert Bannard Broadway, Film and TV actor.

I worked with her privately, then took her Intensive then her classes. Sande’s technique surpassed any that I had studied. I saw immediate results in my work” Brandi Burkhardt, Broadway actress

“While working on The Producers, which takes place in 1959, I immersed myself in one of the distinctions of Sande’s techniques called ‘stylistic and cultural factors’ which helped me create the world of the play yet allowed for my personal daily differences. I was able to live in a different era while using my current experiences and emotions.” – Robert Fowler Broadway actor
